

AiphoneCloud's Remote Management Debuts at GSX

Introducing a New Telephone Entry Kit and the IX | IXG Series Integrations

Redmond, WA – September 19, 2024 – Aiphone, the global leader in intercom and security communication, announced the debut of AiphoneCloud and its Remote Management at the Global Security Exchange (GSX) 2024. The cloud platform is set to revolutionize IP intercom management for security integration professionals.

"We're excited to introduce AiphoneCloud, a platform designed to simplify the work of security integration professionals," said Sean Peterson, Director of Product, Marketing, and Support at Aiphone. "We are committed to continuing the integration and expansion of our offerings and services on the platform to provide our customers with the tools they need to excel in their roles."

Simplify Your Security Projects with AiphoneCloud

AiphoneCloud introduces a suite of powerful tools designed to simplify security system management and increase operational efficiency. With Remote Management, security professionals can configure, monitor, and troubleshoot Aiphone IP intercom systems from anywhere at any time. Additionally, AiphoneCloud's on-demand system design tool, QuikSpec, enables security integrators to create customized solutions tailored to their clients' unique needs. The platform streamlines subscription management, providing a centralized hub for activation and renewal of services.

Upgrade Building Access with the New Telephone Entry Kit

The new telephone entry kit simplifies installation by combining key components into a single box set, including an IXG-DM7-HIDA entrance panel, an IXGW-TGW Cloud Gateway, and a SIM card. This kit allows users to communicate and unlock doors remotely via telephone keypad or the IXG App. By activating the cellular data plan on AiphoneCloud for the Cloud Gateway, security integrators can begin utilizing remote management to service and support their clients' systems.

The AC Series: Enterprise-Grade Access Control for Mid-Size Businesses

In addition to AiphoneCloud, Aiphone is showcasing the AC Nio access control management software at GSX. An intuitive and scalable access management solution for medium-sized businesses seeking enterprise-level features and benefits. Pair with any Aiphone intercom solution for an added layer of protection and control.
